PRESS RELEASE

20210209-PRESS RELEASE Mr G. H. Schorel-Hlavka O.W.B. ISSUE –
The Nuremberg Code-Hippocratic Oath

As a CONSTITUTIONALIST my concern is the true meaning and application of the constitution.

* Gerrit, is it your view that there is a failure to Apply the Hippocratic Oath

INSPECTOR-RIKATI®, every medical doctor is bound to make this Oath. However, the problem we have is that we got far too many politicians who couldn't give a darn about it. I will list the 10 issues:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Nuremberg_Code

QUOTE

The ten points of the Nuremberg Code[\[edit\]](#)

The ten points of the code were given in the section of the verdict entitled "Permissible Medical Experiments":^[5]

- 1. The voluntary consent of the human subject is absolutely essential.
- 2. The experiment should be such as to yield fruitful results for the good of society, unprocurable by other methods or means of study, and not random and unnecessary in nature.
- 3. The experiment should be so designed and based on the results of animal experimentation and a knowledge of the natural history of the disease or other problem under study that the anticipated results will justify the performance of the experiment.
- 4. The experiment should be so conducted as to avoid all unnecessary physical and mental suffering and injury.
- 5. No experiment should be conducted where there is an a priori reason to believe that death or disabling injury will occur; except, perhaps, in those experiments where the experimental physicians also serve as subjects.

6. The degree of risk to be taken should never exceed that determined by the humanitarian importance of the problem to be solved by the experiment.
7. Proper preparations should be made and adequate facilities provided to protect the experimental subject against even remote possibilities of injury, disability, or death.
8. The experiment should be conducted only by scientifically qualified persons. The highest degree of skill and care should be required through all stages of the experiment of those who conduct or engage in the experiment.
9. During the course of the experiment the human subject should be at liberty to bring the experiment to an end if he has reached the physical or mental state where continuation of the experiment seems to him to be impossible.
10. During the course of the experiment the scientist in charge must be prepared to terminate the experiment at any stage, if he has probable cause to believe, in the exercise of the good faith, superior skill and careful judgment required of him that a continuation of the experiment is likely to result in injury, disability, or death to the experimental subject.

END QUOTE

It therefore must be clear that PM Scott Morrison pursuing that there is a compulsory vaccination which is actually an “EXPERIMENT” as the “Experimental Pfizer mRNA COVID Injections” are, albeit he flip flop about it, and so Commie Dan, it is important to understand that I wrote extensively about the so called vaccines to be “EXPERIMENTAL” as it was never before done on humans to alter their genes in such manner, and therefore it is not just good enough to tell them you need to do it or you may not be allowed to use public transport, use an airliner, etc, because what is needed is a medical doctor (Bio-Security Act 2015) to assess each citizen separately and do test on this citizen to make sure that any such experimental vaccination is not going to have some unexpected adverse reaction.

Indeed to allow pharmacist to now inject a citizen when if there is an adverse reaction then the citizen very well if not death right there and then could be ending up with lifelong disabilities, then this too underlines that there is a reckless conduct all around.

To allow any kind of “Experimental Pfizer mRNA COVID Injections” (including that of Moderna) to be used by staff of any pharmacy I view is lunacy in itself.

HANSARD 22-9-1897 Constitution Convention Debates (Official Record of the Debates of the National Australasian Convention)

QUOTE

The Hon. J.H. GORDON (South Australia)[3.15]: I do not see how that can be allowed to pass unless we also hand over to the federal parliament the control of the lunatic asylums.

The Hon. Dr. COCKBURN: And the hospitals!

The Hon. J.H. GORDON: And the hospitals. The control of lunacy necessarily includes the accommodation for lunatics. Unless the buildings are handed over to the federal parliament, I fail to see how that authority can exercise any power over the inmates thereof.

The Hon. J.H. CARRUTHERS (New South Wales)[3.16]: This proposal is not one to give exclusive right to the federal parliament in regard to lunacy matters at all. It is only a proposal to empower the federal parliament, where it becomes a matter of federal concern, to legislate in regard to lunacy. Hon. members-especially those who have held executive office-know that the lunacy question is one which has to be dealt with outside the limits of a particular colony-that the question of lunacy is one that affects the colonies not so much with regard to the lunatics within those colonies, as with regard to those who come from one colony to the other. The federal government requires the power to pass laws with respect to a matter of that character. If afterwards it is deemed wise that the federal government shall go further than that, it will be a matter for the federal government and the states themselves to deal with. It would be a great pity to tie the hands of the federal government by the want of a power of this character. It is not proposed to ask for an exclusive power, but simply for the power of legislation on the subject when it may be deemed advisable. I hope the amendment will be accepted. What ground is there for handing over insolvency and bankruptcy, except for the uniformity of laws? Surely uniformity of laws is desirable in regard to the matter of lunacy. I take it that the exclusion of lunatics is as much a matter of federal concern as is the exclusion of criminals.

END QUOTE

I doubt the Federal Government would go as far as to send politicians in the Federal Government into asylums. After all, there might not be many left in the Federal Parliament if that was to eventuate. Because most politicians are travelling interstate to the Parliament then they essential may be deemed all to fall within Federal powers to be relegated to some asylum.

As a CONSTITUTIONALIST (retired Professional Advocate) Attorney, Executor, Paralegal, Author and Publisher I submit that I have the understanding what is required from the Inter-State Commission within the framework of the provisions of the Commonwealth of Australia Constitution Act 1900 (UK).

The Inter-State Commission:

The Framers of the Constitution held that the Commonwealth of Australia should apply taxes, duties, funding in a "UNIFORM" manner for the whole of the Commonwealth of Australia. However, they also recognised that "uniformity" of application of federal laws may not in certain instances be appropriate, considering the diversity of conditions from State to State, and hence held that the s101 Inter-State Commission should exist as a permanent body within the Commonwealth of Australia. The Inter-State Commission is not an executive body, nor a legislator and neither a judicial body but a body to ensure that laws that were enacted without political interferences would be applied to what a body of experts held was in the best interest of each state concerned and so also the Commonwealth of Australia. Its decisions could be appealed on "error of law" to the High Court of Australia. I understand that since 1987 no Inter-State Commission existed, and prior that only for a few years since about 1917. This is a serious neglect of constitutional requirements and must not be permitted to continue

In past years there was this alleged political deal to fund Hobart Hospital $100 million dollars. In my view this was unconstitutional, and deprived other hospitals of their needed funding. Again, the Parliament can provide legislation to provide the Inter-State Commission with the powers to deal with hospital funding and again we take the politics out of this kind of funding, and so also what is commonly known as "pork barrelling".

As I stated in my 6-2-2021 article

Idiopathic thrombocytopaenic purpura (ITP) is an autoimmune condition resulting in increased platelet destruction. The incident of ITP among children in the UK is reported to be around 4 per 100.000 per year and is usually self limiting, although occasional deaths have occurred[1] ITP in viral infections and with a variety of vaccinations during childhood[2. 3] Case reports describe ITP in close time association with the measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccinations in particular, within 6 weeks of vaccinations [4-7]

END QUOTE my 6-2-2021 article

As such, not only is the “Experimental Pfizer mRNA COVID Injections” an “EXPERIMENT” but also it seems to contain particles that caused added severe reactions.

Would anyone go to an “Emergency” Department of a Hospital to merely check once blood pressure, or if ones hair need to have a cut? The “Triage nurse” would probably sent the person to a general practitioner or to a hairdresser whatever may be applicable. Likewise, you do not sent a person for some “Experimental Pfizer mRNA COVID Injections” to some pharmacy where the person may be so to say the girl Friday who wouldn’t have a clue what to do if something were to go wrong.

How many citizens actually know what they were injected with being it from Pfizer, Moderna, AstraZeneca, or whatever pharmaceutical company? Indeed, when did they explain to each citizen that those companies cannot be sued because they will not accept any legal liability of the citizen is to suffer severe adverse reaction or even death?

53 Dead in Gibraltar in 10 Days After Experimental Pfizer mRNA COVID Injections Started 53 DEAD IN GIBRALTAR IN TEN DAYS FOLLOWING COVID VACCINE.

One can never justify any claim that citizens are “voluntarily” getting vaccinated when they are advised that if they are not they may lose their job, they may not be allowed to travel on public transport, they may not be allowed to fly with a plane, etc.

Each time this kind of “Experimental Pfizer mRNA COVID Injections” are administered by some alleged “health official” without having done a personal assessment of each particular citizen then I view the so called “health official” and those who authorize this conduct all must be held legally accountable for any adverse consequences including any deaths.

I am also wondering if the “Rett Syndrome” that is nearly only with girls may very well be the result from vaccinations?

For any medical doctor to authorize any stranger to make some assessment if a person “may” or is “suspected” of being in ill health is an utter absurdity. Only a medical qualified doctor should be allowed to make such an assessment.

My view is, that unless a medical practitioner has properly assessed a particular individual to have a certain vaccination there must be no one to be vaccinated. It is totally irresponsible to allow some health centre to vaccinate a child without knowing if the child may have allergies that could result in serious adverse reaction or even without any allergies a child could still have serious adverse effect, even to die. For decades, we had this nonsense of health centre’s vaccinating children where if an emergency eventuates there is no proper stand by facilities. We need to change this dramatically to ensure that only medical doctors having properly assessed a individual then can provide a vaccination in a responsible manner where the individual or where it concerns a child the parents can make an informed decision based upon what is provided to them. I view, this must be in writing. Obviously, not in small print.

Without quoting all articles, I will refer to some link where they can be downloaded from.

The time has come to hold the lairs of politicians, medical doctors, scientist and others legally accountable for their “disinformation” and “FRAUD” about the safety of vaccinations. Life long imprisonment may be the most appropriate reward for them.

This document can be downloaded from:

We must never accept that “snake oil” peddling politicians and their cohort can in violation of the true meaning and application of the constitution inflict so much harm upon We, the People by fake “vaccines”.

This document can be downloaded from:

‘Genocidal fake vaccinations’ must be condemned, and we must return to politicians and others to work within ‘peace, order and good government’ and not contrary to it.

This document can be downloaded from:

We have medical doctors and scientist on the one hand making clear vaccinations are safe and the politicians are going along with this whereas other medical doctors And scientist are making clear that it is very dangerous, etc. So, what we have is Big Tech silencing those who are exposing a different set of details that is not acceptable to their mantra. This even supported by politicians such as a Minister of Health claiming that it is “disinformation” and dangerous to allow this to be published, when in fact the danger is to prohibit proper communication from both sides and for any individual to make an “informed decision”. It is the Minister for Health who is promoting “disinformation” but under the guise of knowing it all is silencing those who are telling the truth.

By increments this dictatorship is becoming worse by the day and all claiming to be for the best of society when in reality it is for the worse. We now have some claimed specialist stating that the virus could be for 10 years or more as to pursue more restrictions. This is the danger when you got those kind of people making claims that are not based upon FACTS but merely assumed like this utter and sheer nonsense of this Neil Ferguson about the death toll, etc.

As I understand it, there are billions of viruses all around us, and always have been. It is when some bacterium takes a ride with a particular virus that one can end up with certain medical problems.

Why some pockets of Indonesia remain COVID-free while the country's cases continue to surge past 1 million

QUOTE

As the number of COVID-19 cases in Indonesia continues to grow, two remote traditional groups have yet to record a single case throughout the pandemic.

Key points:

Visitors are not allowed to come to the village where Baduy people live in West Java

The tribe is known for limiting interactions with people from outside their villages

An epidemiologist suggested all Baduy people should get tested to ensure they are COVID-free

The country hit 1 million COVID-19 cases at the end of last month, almost two weeks after the vaccine developed by China's CoronaVac was rolled out.

But among at least two tribes in West Java — the people of Baduy and Kasepuhan Ciptagelar — no positive cases have ever been detected.

Iron Rustandi, a health officer in Lebak Regency in the Banten Province says he "appreciates Baduy residents for controlling COVID-19".

The Baduy, with a current population of around 12,000, live in a cluster of 65 villages in a 50-square-kilometre remote area in the Kendeng Mountains in Banten Province, 160 kilometres from the capital city of Jakarta.

QUOTE

The Inner Baduy strictly practice their traditional way of life and are considered protectors of the balance with nature.

For example, the Inner Baduy do not use soap when bathing and do not use detergent to wash clothes because they do not want to pollute water, which to them is the source of life.

They wear white shirts and head coverings as a sign of purity, and grey skirts.

Historically, they have had extremely limited contact with outsiders.

QUOTE

The Outer Baduy, who are identifiable by their black clothing, live in about 40 villages surrounding the Inner Baduy, to provide a buffer.

They protect the sanctity of the Inner Baduy from the influences of the outside world.

While still living in remote areas, the Outer Baduy are not as strict with traditional culture, and interact with the wider world in ways designed to help sustain the Inner Baduy.

They keep the environment clean by not littering and not carelessly cutting down trees.

They limit their use of technology.

Using electricity is prohibited for the Inner Baduy, and as a result there is no television or radio in their homes, let alone other gadgets.

The Baduy people also limit interactions with outsiders and ask anyone who enters Baduy villages to respect the traditions of their community.

Why some pockets of Indonesia remain COVID-free while the country's cases continue to surge past 1 million

QUOTE

Dr Windhu Purnomo, an epidemiologist from Airlangga University in Surabaya, said a closed community tended to be safe from transmission of COVID-19.

"The efforts of the Baduy people to stay in one place, limiting their mobilities, are actually the key," Dr Purnomo told the ABC.

"But I am worried because tourists are still allowed to enter.

"Even if you carry antigen test results, there is still a risk of transmission.

"Say the requirement is the test result that is valid for the last three days. What if the tourist just got infected yesterday?" This can be a leak and risky for the Baduy."

Dr Purnomo said to ensure that there really were no cases in the community, it would be better if all Baduy people were tested.

"The test capacity needs to be expanded, not only in Baduy but in all regions in Indonesia, considering our test capacity is still one of the lowest in the world, we are number 159 out of 202 countries," he said.

END QUOTE

Children who grow up in the bush, or well in certain filthy conditions, often are more healthier than those who grow up in so to say glass houses. This is because their immune system has encountered numerous bacteria's that the glass house kids likely never did, and when they then suddenly are faced with some then it can have severe consequences.

All the various "preservatives" that are these days on food also must be of concern that they can cause obesity, etc. After all, they are "preservatives" and so may prevent proper digestion of food.

Again:

"Even if you carry antigen test results, there is still a risk of transmission.

"Say the requirement is the test result that is valid for the last three days. What if the tourist just got infected yesterday?"

The rollout of the certificates program has gone to the federal cabinet, where it has been discussed at length with approval expected within weeks.

The move is expected to allow Australians more freedom of movement, particularly around visiting hospitals and aged care homes, where high-risk patients reside.

It's also expected to play a key role as Australia looks to reopen its international borders in the months to come.

It comes as UK scientists launch the world's first study examining whether different coronavirus vaccines can safely be used for two-dose regimens - an approach they say could give extra flexibility and even boost protection against COVID-19 if approved.

Let us look at the following quotations:

"people's immunisation history statements"

So, now we have our identity card by using the Medicare card for purposes it was never intended to be used for. Soon your entire medical history will be on the card and then when you desire some insurance the insurance company will DEMAND to be provided with all details or you are charged say “double” the insurance rate.

This is the real hideous issue behind many of using COVID as an excuse.

“The move is expected to allow Australians more freedom of movement.”

No it is not, because our natural rights provide for the “freedom of movement”. What they are trying to do is to make your “freedom of movement” subject to dictatorship so they in increments deny you the very “freedom of movement” you already have. They are now pursuing you need to prove you are entitled to your “freedom of movement” rather than for the Government to prove you should be denied certain “freedom of movement” such as that you were convicted of a crime that resulted to being lawfully incarcerated. However, no the Governments are pursuing that they can “incarcerate” anyone not because they committed some heinous crime but because well you just have to prove you are entitled to your natural rights of “freedom of movement”.

“the world's first study examining whether different coronavirus vaccines can safely be used for two-dose regimens”

This just underlines that it is a study and now every citizen becomes a “Guinea Pig”. Politicians couldn’t care less about any death toll in the process because they will argue it is for the good of society. Perhaps, next they will argue to have people being electrocuted as being for the good of society? Or to be deliberately poison as to see how many will die all for the good of society.

It seems to me that anyone who were to vote for this kind of nonsense should be placed in an asylum. Why have, as set out in this document, parliament voting for invasive DNA procedures when already the “mRNA” vaccinations are doing it?

“in different combinations and at different intervals.”

Now it is not good enough to experiment on humans with the “mRNA” vaccines and so let up the ante and make sure there is more harm to be done. How on earth this Greg Hunt can be Minister for health is beyond me. To me and that is politely stated he should be put in a straight jacket and muzzled so he never again utter any other word of stupidity. This bloke seems to me to be ignorant to the human lives he is playing with.

As I have set out in my previous articles referred to above, there has been no separation of the virus to which politicians and many medical professions and scientist are referring to. It is like I am going to a mechanic and ask him what is best to do with my Holden motor vehicle as it is not at all starting up. When the mechanic then ask me to bring in the Holden I explain I actually do not have a Holden but that is immaterial as I merely want him to explain how I can address the issue not being able to get the Holden starting.

Consider this with the following:

Dr Sherri Tenpenny refers to the website clinicaltrials.gov/ct2/show/ regarding the details, as such they are government issued details.

Of course, the pharmaceutical companies will play around when politicians are willing to sacrifice their constituents lives.

The virus contaminated at least four batches of vaccine totalling almost three million doses between 1956 and 1962.

Two of the batches were released after testing positive to contamination. The other two were released before tests could be done. An unknown number of earlier batches were also almost certainly contaminated.

An investigation by The Age has found documents from the Commonwealth Serum Laboratories which reveal bosses there released one batch of about 700,000 doses of contaminated vaccine in 1962 on the grounds that "much vaccine issued in the past was probably similarly contaminated".

Australia's leading experts on the virus, which is known as simian virus 40 or SV40, have found traces of it in human tumour cells and are calling for urgent funding to clarify the links.

Commonwealth Serum Laboratories knew from its own internal research that the monkey virus was a potential cause of cancer in humans. The research, which was never made public, was carried out in August 1962, while contaminated batches of vaccine were still being released. Tests carried out at the time also showed monkey virus contamination of some of the "seed" polio virus used to produce all Salk polio vaccines between 1956 and 1962.

Millions given infected polio vaccine

QUOTE

Professor Robinson, who has found SV40 traces in meso-thelioma lung tumours in Australian patients, said relatively little research had been done locally on SV40. "We do need to know what's going on in this country because we have the world's highest incidence [of mesothelioma]," he said.

said that while the "jury is still well out" on whether the virus causes cancer, "I really still think there is a case to be answered and it needs a lot more research".

A spokeswoman for the federal Health Department said Australia's medicines watchdog, the Therapeutic Goods Administration, was monitoring research by the US Centres for Disease Control into SV40 and cancer.

She said vaccine manufacturers now followed strict safety guidelines, with all vaccines on the Australian market being thoroughly tested before release.

Commonwealth Serum Laboratories, which was privatised in 1994, supports the call for further research. Its director of public affairs, Rachel David, said establishing whether SV40 caused cancer would be difficult, but "I don't discount the debate that's going on".

She said the company's practices had changed dramatically and the public could be "very confident about the quality and safety of vaccines being produced at the moment".

She said the decision to release contaminated vaccine would have been reached after "balancing off" the very real risk of polio epidemics against what was at the time a "small theoretical risk" from the monkey virus. "We stand by the safety of what we produce now, but to go back 40 years and start talking about the decisions that people were making in that environment, I can't pass judgement on that," she said. Polio vaccinations are no longer routinely given in Australia following the declaration in 2001 that the western Pacific region was polio-free.

Documents held in the National Archives relating to Commonwealth Serum Laboratories' production of Salk polio vaccine show that the first tests for SV40 were carried out in February 1962, after the alarm was raised internationally in 1961 of possible contamination.

They were found earlier this year by a Melbourne researcher, Brenda Coughlan, who was searching for material for a book.

SV40 came from pulped infected monkey kidneys used to produce cell cultures to grow the polio virus. The polio virus was then killed using formaldehyde to produce the vaccine, but SV40 survived the process.

The Age confirmed the contents of the documents, including research work notes, with the biochemist who carried out the SV40 testing in 1962 for Commonwealth Serum Laboratories. His name is John Withell and he was later head of the Therapeutic Goods Administration's laboratory in Canberra.

Minutes of a meeting held at Commonwealth Serum Laboratories on May 1, 1962 record how the organisation's then director, Ron Greville, confirmed that SV40 had been found in vaccine batch number 64, which was being readied for release.

"Dr Greville opened the discussion by stating that although SV40 was present in batch 64, the batch would be issued; a decision which was founded on the belief that probably much vaccine issued in the past was probably similarly contaminated," the minutes say.

The agency's records show that batch 64 was officially released in December 1962.

Mr Withell's research results show that three other batches of vaccine also tested positive for SV40: batch 49, released in October 1959, batch 63, released in February 1962 and batch 65, released in January 1963. Batch 66 was also positive, and was destroyed after an attempt to rid it of SV40, ordered by health authorities in Canberra, killed the vaccine's effectiveness. The authorities said no further vaccine containing living monkey virus could be released.

Later batches of vaccine were made from the kidneys of monkeys shown to be free of SV40 infection. Only one batch of those tested, number 58 released in September 1961, was negative.

Mr Withell also tested three "seed" polio viruses that had been originally obtained from the Salk laboratories in the US in 1955 and used to manufacture Australian polio vaccines.

His test results contained in the National Archives show that one of the seed viruses was heavily contaminated with SV40.

"Type two [polio seed virus] was stuffed full of SV40," Mr Withell said.

He stressed that the negative results for the other two types of polio seed virus did not necessarily show they were free from SV40, because the test was not sensitive enough.

Research notes also show that in August 1962 Mr Withell tested the effect of SV40 on human embryo cells. The SV40 caused "transformation" in the cells, which indicated it was potentially carcinogenic.

Mr Withell said the results were reported to an internal research panel for Commonwealth Serum Laboratories, but were never made public.

My view is, that it is up to the parents and not some "A spokeswoman for the federal Health Department" to determine the rights of a child and its parents.

If politicians are so much about the safety of vaccinations then well let them and their family members be the first to be on the receiving end. And, if they die as result of the vaccinations well it was self inflicted and good riddance.

Why on earth would anyone even consider to vaccinate the elderly in the last years of their lives when such vaccination merely weakens their immune system?

Ground-breaking technique to reduce risk of potentially fatal genetic diseases could soon be legal in Australia
QUOTE

A ground-breaking medical technique that could reduce the risk of children developing a debilitating and potentially fatal genetic disease could soon become legal in Australia, following years of campaigning from advocates and families.

Key points:

Mitochondrial donation is an assisted reproductive technology that can help parents avoid transmitting mitochondrial DNA disease to their children

The Government plans to introduce legislation to Parliament within the next few months to allow the groundbreaking medical technique

Coalition MPs and senators will be allowed a conscience vote on the issue

END QUOTE

If this screwing up with the DNA must be approved by legislation, then why is the same not pursued with the “mRNA” vaccines?

Also, politicians are elected to represent their constituents and as such a “conscience” vote must always be what the constituency approves of. Party politics is not what should override the intentions of the constituency.

I wonder if the DNA medical technique is not yet approved then why can then the gene vaccinations “Experimental Pfizer mRNA COVID Injections” be permitted to proceed?

It should be understood that changing a persons DNA is a very serious matter. In particular where we have already been informed that the South African Strain of the virus may need a different vaccination. Meaning another “Experimental Pfizer mRNA COVID Injections” as to add to the previous one. And well if there are more strains that need new “Experimental Pfizer mRNA COVID Injections” then a person could end up having numerous “mRNA” changes and then we must consider what with the original DNA changes that no longer are available? What will be the medical consequences for the person having all kinds of “mRNA”

To combat something that may never eventuate for that person but now missing what may have been vital for that person? After all, to argue that those parts of the DNA is not relevant is to argue that our makeup can do without certain DNA parts.

Who really decided that certain parts within our DNA system are not needed at all? Are the pharmaceutical companies now going to rule to roost and tell us what for their financial gain we as citizens may or may not require within our own bodies?

Regardless what the TGA may or may not decide in the end the TGA is not there to determine a case by case management of each citizens biological make up. It may merely determine that some kind of vaccine may not be harmful in its opinion, irrespective if it actually may be, as it goes on a general assessment. Never minds the little kids who died because the pharmaceutical companies were using known infected harmful polio vaccines, as I previous wrote about, but surely do not want to waste monies on defective vaccines as that would lower their financial profits. And, in the end ALLEGEDLY they cannot be sued for their what I view criminal conduct.

As a constitutionalist, I view, that the Federal Government cannot exclude any pharmaceutical company from legal liability. All federal laws must be "UNIFORM".

Mr. BARTON (New South Wales).-I have prepared an amendment with regard to this sub-section, which puts the matter into a form which would express the intention of the Convention, whilst avoiding a difficulty. Honorable members will recollect the difficulty that arose over the construction of words equivalent to "uniform throughout the Commonwealth" in the United States of America. Although no actual decision has been given, a doubt has been raised as to the meaning of the word "uniform." The celebrated income tax case went off as to the direct apportionment of taxation amongst the people according to numbers, and this point was not decided, but a great deal of doubt has been thrown on the meaning of the word in the judgment of

Mr. Justice Field. I think that although the word "uniform" has the meaning it was intended to have-"one in form" throughout the Commonwealth-still there might be a difficulty, and litigation might arise about it, and prolonged trouble might be occasioned with regard to the provision in case, for instance, an income tax or a land tax was imposed. What is really wanted is to prevent a discrimination between citizens of the Commonwealth in the same circumstances. I beg to move-

That all the words after the word "taxation" where it is first used be struck out, and that the following words be substituted:-"but not so as to discriminate between states or parts of states, or between goods passing from one state to another."

I conceive it to be quite unnecessary to retain these words in view of clause 89, prescribing free-trade among the several states, under which any duty or tax on goods passing from one state to another would be clearly invalid, and could not possibly be allowed by the operation of the preference clauses. I propose not to say anything about goods in this connexion passing from one state to another, as that is sufficiently provided for, and I put in this provision, which prevents discrimination or any form of tax which would make a difference between the citizen of one state and the citizen of another state, and to prevent anything which would place a tax upon a person going from one state to another. I beg to move-

That all the words after the first word "taxation" in the second sub-section be omitted, with a view to inserting the following words-"but not so as to discriminate between states or parts of states, or between persons or things passing from one state to another."

The amendment was agreed to.

Dr. COCKBURN.-The whole proposal is foreign to the spirit of the Constitution. The Constitution lays it down that the Commonwealth is to deal equally with all the states whether it is in the matter of taxation, of bounties, or of trade, and we may as well strike out the provision that all taxation shall be uniform throughout the Commonwealth if we are to contemplate that after the taxation has been raised the proceeds may be handed over to any one colony. The thing will not bear a moment's investigation, and I hope the honorable member will not press his proposal to a division. It is a pity that the amendment has been brought forward. There is no possibility, nor does any one contemplate the possibility, of any of the states being in a worse financial position than they are in at the present time. On the contrary, I believe that their financial position, good as it is now, will be infinitely improved.

Sir GEORGE TURNER: It would never do to allow in this Federal Parliament that those representatives who are elected upon the most liberal franchise possible should be outvoted by those who would be elected by a very limited franchise indeed. As this may fairly be regarded as the National House, representing the people of the various States as a nation, we ought to have uniformity in the franchise. We must leave it to the Federal Parliament to say what the franchise should be. At the same time, as some colonies have given the right of voting to those who have not that right in other colonies, it would be unfair and inequitable to take from any who have the right, and therefore whatever uniformity is determined upon we shall have to allow the innovation that no person, man or woman, who has the right to vote shall be deprived of exercising that right, even so far as the elections to the Federal Parliament are concerned. I would go the length of saying that everyone who has the right in the various colonies, if they desire to exercise their franchise, should have the opportunity of doing so.

Would Australia shift from AstraZeneca to Novavax?

"That is the scientific and industry technical advisory, led by Professor Brendan Murphy and the Australian technical advisory and immunisation, always determining the conditions under which any vaccines are recommended under Therapeutic Goods Administration, the medical regulator.

"They determine the medicines and vaccinations which are safe for use in Australia on the basis of arguably, as rigorous a process as any in the world.

"If the TGA gives that the check, that it is safe and effective and we will follow their advice."

END QUOTE

Again, the TGA in my view doesn't give medical advice as to each individual but merely indicates what it considers to be in general applicable. And as set out the TGA can approve certain vaccinations but then as with the polio contaminated vaccinations it cannot then be claimed that the TGA approval therefore makes it responsible for this disastrous harm inflicted upon so many children.

What this does however expose that somehow the TGA fails to monitor what is actually injected into individuals and of any record keeping to the extent of the harm inflicted.

In my view, it is not for some person or persons to decide the life or death of anyone to allow infected vaccines to be used. It should have been reported to the TGA and I view it should then have prevented any usage of the infected polio vaccines.

What obviously is also proven is that there is really no safety system in place to deal with such issue at all. And when we had already in 2020 vaccinations being made in Victoria even so the trial dates are for 2022 and 2023 for final approval then I view it is nothing less but a criminal conspiracy by Craig Hunt Minister for Health and others to circumvent the proper legal procedures and use the "Emergency" for ordinary roll out. Yes, their mantra might be to vaccinate the elderly as much as possible and if they die then well it saves monies for their pensions and/or care and it can always be blamed on "natural deaths" even if all of them die within 24 hours of being vaccinated.

Well this needs to stop.

Anatomy of our battle against COVID-19

QUOTE

It began with a trickle that many feared would become a tsunami.

Canberra silversmith Marissa Ziesing was so afraid of being part of that wave of infection that she delayed going to hospital even when her fever broke 40 degrees Celsius. The 35-year-old had been sick with a cough and temperature for six days but had already returned a negative test for COVID-19.

“I was calling the nurse helpline and they were saying to call an ambulance, but I didn’t,” she says.

“It sounds really dramatic but at the time they were saying that Australia was going to be like Italy [where hospitals were overwhelmed] ... I was just really worried about wasting tests and wasting resources and putting anyone at risk.”

Canberra jewellery designer Marissa Ziesing still suffers symptoms from her coronavirus infection.

So Marissa stayed put for another night in her friend’s spare room where she was quarantining after returning to Australia from her adopted home in London.

The next day, Marissa was hospitalised with COVID-19. Her earlier test had been a false negative.

“I wasn’t ventilated but I was on oxygen. I had issues with my heart and kidney and liver ... I was really scared,” she says.

It was March 30. The virus had already killed more than 39,600 people worldwide. Ten months later, another 2 million would be dead.

One of the most terrifying aspects of contracting COVID-19 so early in the pandemic was how little the world knew about the disease, Marissa says.

“The doctors were telling me how they were reading about it, saying, ‘Well, from what we’ve read about what you’re saying ...’ because that’s all they had to go on.”

Marissa is among the hundreds who responded to an ABC survey about how the pandemic has affected Australians.

Returned travellers like Marissa make up two-thirds of the nearly 6,800 people diagnosed with coronavirus during the first wave of infections in Australia.

Anatomy of our battle against COVID-19

QUOTE

“It led to a really rapid escalation in case numbers ... [and] multiple spreader events, particularly in that north-west corridor in Melbourne.

“It was these people’s families, their workplaces, their schools, their nursing homes, primarily ... They were the hardest hit.”

As the virus cut a swathe through the city, young workers were also swept up, with people in their 20s recording the highest number of diagnoses of any age group.

“There was a lot of, ‘Oh, look, all these young adults are still spreading the virus’ and somehow it was all about partying,” Doherty Institute professor Jodie McVernon says.

“But who was working in the supermarkets and the hospitals? Who was delivering your groceries and takeaway meals?” They were the people actually out there, even in lockdown, working at the front line.”

From workplaces, it seeped into homes. At the public housing towers in North Melbourne and Flemington, the number of infections soared more than 10-fold in a month, from 28 to 310.

High-rise buildings with shared amenities, crowded units and a vulnerable population, the towers were a tinderbox for the disease.

“If you are four people living in a four-bedroom, two-bathroom house, it’s going to be much easier to isolate yourselves from each other than if you are 10 people living in a two-bedroom, one-bathroom unit,” Professor McVernon says.

“There were a lot of shared facilities and common spaces like laundries and stairwells where people from many, many households would congregate very close together.

“And there were also quite a lot of elderly people living alone in those towers who were more vulnerable to severe outcomes.”

Data showing the percentage of local- versus overseas-spread infections tells the story.

In Victoria, overseas cases plummeted from 63 per cent of confirmed cases at the peak of the first wave to just 5 per cent.

This compares with 89 per cent in WA, 76 per cent in Queensland and 57 per cent in NSW.

Even starker are the figures at local council level.

Among Victorian councils with more than 500 confirmed cases, the share of local infections climbs as high as 99 per cent in the blue-collar areas of Brimbank and Wyndham.

Brimbank battled three major meatworks outbreaks — Cedar Meats, JBS Abattoir and Somerville Retail Services. Wyndham is home to Al-Taqwa College, where infections climbed past 200, and some of the deadliest nursing home clusters, including Bapcare Wyndham Lodge and Glendale.

END QUOTE

“But who was working in the supermarkets and the hospitals? Who was delivering your groceries and takeaway meals?”

I have raised this issue for many months. Politicians are only after using the COVID issue to garnish more power but not as to how actually avoid the spread of the virus. They pretend to do so by (unconstitutional) border closures but people, in particular the most vulnerable elderly, are left to fend for themselves without the appropriate services that should have been in place.

No one should ignore what Marissa went through. However, killing off the elderly isn't going to make undone that Marissa suffered. While I understand that testing should be at maximum 5 cycles we nevertheless had that the CDC was promoting even 40 cycles. Meaning a lot of false positives. Obviously now with Joe Biden it suddenly is to lower the cycles to 35, as to pretend that there are far less “cases”.

When one considers that Fauci was opposed to HCQ, this even so he all along was aware that the lancet reports were withdrawn that false made claims against HCQ, then one has to ask about the Reliability of any claims by WHO and CDC and so any medical doctor/scientist/politician, etc, seeking to rely upon their flip-flop claims.

Anatomy of our battle against COVID-19

QUOTE

At least 5,078 of some 18,700 second-wave infections in Victoria — more than one in four — are linked to aged care, according to the data published by Victoria's Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) on January 22.

Among the aged care cases, just under 40 per cent are residents, 38 per cent are staff and about 23 per cent are other linked cases such as household contacts, spanning some 70 facilities. The data only includes aged care homes with five or more confirmed cases.

The tragedy was not unforeseeable. Nursing homes are “an incubator for outbreaks”, Professor MacIntyre says.

“We've had experience with aged care outbreaks for decades and decades. We know that aged care is at high risk for big outbreaks of things like flu and RSV (respiratory syncytial virus) and gastroenteritis.

“There's a lot of vulnerable people living in close proximity, staff coming and going, and moving between residents.”

Doherty Institute's Professor McVernon said the tragedy that had played out in nursing homes reflected “something about our society ... and what we invest in aged care”.

“In Switzerland, where they've had very, very high rates of infection, they've had very low rates of outbreaks in aged care,” she said.

Anatomy of our battle against COVID-19

QUOTE

Professor MacIntyre warns that Australia's “stubborn refusal” to recognise the role of airborne transmission in the spread of coronavirus is “absolutely a flashpoint”.

“Australia has been one of the last countries to acknowledge airborne transmission as a major way that the virus spreads,” she says.

“Even the WHO and the US, which were denying it at the beginning, are now acknowledging that it's important — particularly indoors.”

Recognising the role of airborne transmission would allow Australia to address two critical weaknesses that continue to threaten health and safety, she says. The first is respiratory protection, particularly for workers in quarantine settings, and the second is ventilation, which is especially problematic in high-rise buildings.

But Australia has the advantage of two vital weapons in our fight against the disease, Professor Vernon says. “Political will and the public. Without those things, it doesn't matter what the expert advice is. It doesn't matter what the armoury of vaccines or medicines or anything else is,” she says.

“If the public doesn't go along with the advice, if they don't present for testing, if they don't change their behaviours, if they don't participate ... you can't go anywhere.”

END QUOTE

OK, In about May 2020 I highlighted in my articles that the Chinese cartoon about the virus being spread airborne. As such, not particularly something new. Just that mask are not going to do it.

Perhaps an example would be to have a kitchen strainer and try to keep in it fine grinded coffee. The coffee would be far too fine to not go through the little holes. The same is with masks, they are not suited to keep some virus out. As I have written about over many months, the lack of proper housekeeping in certain nursing homes more than likely is the real issue why there is a spread of an illness. If bacterium like with the Legionnaires Disease are introduced in the kitchen environment where the meals of staff and residents are being prepared then no amount of previous deep cleaning is going to prevent an outbreak.

In the USA, when I recently checked, despite the claimed 400,000 COVID deaths somehow the death toll of the years was about the same as the previous year. And, it seems that percentage wise the same seems to be applicable in Australia. Well, politicians and others may argue that if it wasn't because of the dictatorship restrictions (OK, they will unlikely use the word DICTATORSHIP) there would have been more COVID deaths. Yes, that is like saying because I am wearing gum booths it didn't rain but it would have if I had been wearing different booths. What an utter nonsense.

When did any scientist “isolate” the COVID virus? Remember, my Holden example?

If they could “isolate” the virus then why didn't they do so say regarding the HIV and other viruses over the decades. Perhaps because politicians are betraying their oaths/affirmations to uphold the constitution pharmaceutical companies now use them as accomplices to betray their oaths/affirmations and even to set up a New World Order?

Commonwealth of Australia Constitution Act 1900 (UK)

QUOTE

Part IV—Both Houses of the Parliament

41 Right of electors of States

No adult person who has or acquires a right to vote at elections for the more numerous House of the Parliament of a State shall, while the right continues, be prevented by any law of the Commonwealth from voting at elections for either House of the Parliament of the Commonwealth.

42 Oath or affirmation of allegiance

Every senator and every member of the House of Representatives shall before taking his seat make and subscribe before the Governor-General, or some person authorised by him, an oath or affirmation of allegiance in the form set forth in the schedule to this Constitution.

43 Member of one House ineligible for other

A member of either House of the Parliament shall be incapable of being chosen or of sitting as a member of the other House.

44 Disqualification

Any person who:

(i) is under any acknowledgment of allegiance, obedience, or adherence to a foreign power, or is a subject or a citizen or entitled to the rights or privileges of a subject or a citizen of a foreign power; or

(ii) is attainted of treason, or has been convicted and is under sentence, or subject to be sentenced, for any offence punishable under the law of the Commonwealth or of a State by imprisonment for one year or longer; or
(iii) is an undischarged bankrupt or insolvent; or
(iv) holds any office of profit under the Crown, or any pension payable during the pleasure of the Crown out of any of the revenues of the Commonwealth; or
(v) has any direct or indirect pecuniary interest in any agreement with the Public Service of the Commonwealth otherwise than as a member and in common with the other members of an incorporated company consisting of more than twenty-five persons; shall be incapable of being chosen or of sitting as a senator or a member of the House of Representatives.
But subsection (iv) does not apply to the office of any of the Queen's Ministers of State for the Commonwealth, or of any of the Queen's Ministers for a State, or to the receipt of pay, half pay, or a pension, by any person as an officer or member of the Queen's navy or army, or to the receipt of pay as an officer or member of the naval or military forces of the Commonwealth by any person whose services are not wholly employed by the Commonwealth.

END QUOTE

I understand from this that any Member of Parliament professing any thing regarding a New World Order by this is automatically disqualified to be a Member of a Parliament. Hence, the Minister for health NSW professing to implement a New World Order actually must be deemed to have vacated his seat. This as in Section 106 of the constitution the States are created "subject to this constitution" and as such all embedded legal principles apply to the States also.

Can we vaccinate people against falling for vaccine lies?

QUOTE

A hallmark of the coronavirus pandemic has been the related "infodemic" of fake news that has circulated online.
But while many have tried valiantly to set the story straight, fact-based debunking is often a tougher sell than a wild conspiracy theory.
Now experts are trying a different approach: they've come up with a game where you play the role of a fake-news generator in an attempt to get people to recognise misinformation when they see it.
So on today's Coronacast, can we use games and similar techniques to vaccinate people against falling for vaccine lies?

END QUOTE

I did listen to the 10 minutes audio tape (cvp_20210208_episode233_vaccine_misinfo to which it refers to on the website) and it seemed to me more like an advertisement than any real serious discussion about what really is "infodemic".

First of all the WHO has been an example of misinformation that it claims one thing and later another thing. And, as I covered in previous writings Dr Fauci of CDC is known for this and he himself admitted to lie. (I got this on tape)

Whereas when I write any article I quote not only what was stated but also refer generally to the internet link so that any reader can download the article/video I refer to unless it is deleted by the so called "platform".

The following is something we all better not ignore. In time people will ask why on earth so many around the world fell for the rubbish that was driven by pharmaceutical companies to inject citizens ignorant of any health benefits and indeed endanger their lives without proper legal provisions being in place.

With the New World O we may indeed do better to have ample of supplies at home, just in case, albeit there is obviously a time limit to how long one can keep this as well as when it is consumed then what is there availability for replacements.

“In 1941 the ceiling of the church is glued with a rolling scaffold 27 meters high, for the service of city buildings.

“When the ceiling is repainted [again], we will no longer belong to this earth, so we must tell our descendants that we did not enjoy our lives. We have been through two wars, one in 1914 and one in 1941, and we can still count!

“We stand here working hungry, they squeeze us to the last penny for a little food.

“I advise our descendants, if war comes again in the course of their lives, to keep a supply of rice, coffee, flour, tobacco, wheat, [and] grain in the house for you! Enjoy life to the fullest, take in another female in time, for those who are married, look after the house! Salut men!

Can we vaccinate people against falling for vaccine lies?

QUOTE

A hallmark of the coronavirus pandemic has been the related "infodemic" of fake news that has circulated online.

But while many have tried valiantly to set the story straight, fact-based debunking is often a tougher sell than a wild conspiracy theory.

Now experts are trying a different approach: they've come up with a game where you play the role of a fake-news generator in an attempt to get people to recognise misinformation when they see it.

So on today's Coronacast, can we use games and similar techniques to vaccinate people against falling for vaccine lies?

Where are two sides on a coin such as one set of medical doctors/scientist making certain claims and then on the other side medical doctors/scientist making opposite claims then I view both should be allowed to present their views. Yet, this ABC program I refer to above is promoting that algorithms should to block those views which do not correspond to their mantra.

Politicians better be aware that soon or later your political views no longer might be acceptable and so then you too can be silenced by Big Tech as has been occurring in the USA and other countries.

Subject: Vaccine freedom vs discrimination Petition EN2192 on aph website expiring Wednesday 10th Feb

Valid across Australia,

Many have attempted to raise petitions but this one has been gaining traction and is close to the numbers to push through.

Jump on it by Wednesday to get it way over the 100,000 petitioners minimum

https://www.aph.gov.au/petition_list?id=EN2192

Vaccine freedom to choose petition on APH website expiring Wednesday 10th Feb.

Interestingly, since recording of signatures began in 1988, the petition with the greatest number of signatures was presented on 26 February 2014 concerning funding support for community pharmacies, with 1,210,471 signatures. The second largest was presented on 4 December 2000 concerning taxation and beer prices, with 792,985 signatures.

Surely our freedom of choice, freedom to travel and freedom to socialise is much more important than funding community pharmacies and beer taxes!

A few days may not be enough to surpass those numbers but lets at least generate a response.

Cheers

Regards,

Darren.

Throughout my writings of numerous articles I seek to avoid to create/cause disinformation and hence pursue to disclose the relevant internet link, so that any reader can establish what was stated and that I have not alter the meaning of any item.

When however politicians are referring to “science” they really mean the concocted claimed “science” such as that against HCQ where likely many lives could have been saved had this nonsense of their kind of “science” not been pursued.

Using algorism to prevent honest debates as to the positive and negatives of any drug/vaccination, etc, is why many persons died that I view could have been avoided.

As the High Court of Australia in the Albert Langer case made very clear that electors should be able to have access to all relevant details so they can make an “informed” decision who to vote for. Obviously now politicians are preventing this by supporting this concocted version that they are always telling the truth and anyone saying something different is causing disinformation.

Even if some person may mistakenly make a claim then well the answer is to provide a contrary explanation. However, banning any person from presenting his/her views is not proving at all that they are seeking to state disinformation, rather those who are pursuing disinformation are trying to prevent the truth to be exposed.

One of the things I noticed is that when walking into a pharmacy, surgery, etc, those doing the temperature measurements somehow do not know that it is dangerous to point a temperature gauge (in particular in the shape of a gun) at someone's forehead as it can cause calcification of the "pineal gland". I have to repeated let them know they should measure the pulse instead. Just consider the harm upon schoolchildren (including toddlers) who might have it done hundreds of times during a school year. And, you have the very ignorant persons going to "vaccinate" a person with some substance they lack the medical knowledge as to what to do when an adverse reaction eventuates. In my view any vaccination must only be permitted to be done where a medical doctor personally has signed off for this. For example the "medical doctor" is to fill in a electronic form with Medicare that he had first ensured that the patient had a blood test during the previous 2 weeks and the result are known that he has tested the patients for any possible allergies and certify that in the relevant circumstances the/she authorizes for the vaccination to take place under his personal supervision by a nurse, unless the medical doctor does so personally. When it comes to an ambulance officer (medic) then in urgent circumstances he/she may hold it appropriate to inject something into the patient, say, to save the life of the patient, but must then afterwards make an electronic statement as to the relevant situation to justify this. As such, we do not desire to prevent an ambulance officer in any emergency to be prevented from doing what at that time is deemed the most appropriate medical conduct. No more health centres vaccinations this as there is simply no medical oversight by a medical doctor.

No more unconstitutional exemptions for any pharmaceutical company to prevent them to be held legally accountable as we seem to have a repeat of the past infected polio vaccinations now being with the COVID vaccinations.

All my children were vaccinated and so I am not against vaccinations but I am against corrupt politicians pushing vaccinations contrary to the right of any individual and in the process may cause the death of the many.

Politicians are far too often sowing disinformation and now are actively pursuing that the Big Tech adheres to their political mantra and that is very dangerous. In my view the right of any individual and so any parent/carer of a child is to make an "informed" decision with full knowledge what is contained in any vaccine, what are possible adverse reactions, etc.

I do not doubt at all that what is referred to as "COVID-19" can have serious health complications for particular persons, regardless what the real illness might be. We need for this medical doctors, scientist and politicians as well as others engage in a freely exchange of views, without excluding anyone. Those who may error then may revise their views. But, for the individual it could be lifesaving if those attending to provide care are not merely conducting themselves based upon some mantra, but are really acting in the best interest of this individual.

The truth can only be known if both sides of the argument can be heard. Politicians who are seeking to silence an opponent view must be deemed to know they are in the wrong.

We need to return to the organics and legal principles embed in of our federal constitution!
